

Pit Rim Walkway back on track

When the Pit Rim Walkway was first constructed 13 years ago it ran along the top of the North Wall and provided great views of the open pit and to the south. The slip on the North Wall in 2015 meant that the walkway had to be rerouted, in part along local roads. Now, the walkway is being reinstated.

Now, locals and tourist will once again be able to walk around the pit rim on the gravel track. A new section has been constructed. This 800-metre section takes walkers from the Education Centre through the 'Hidden Garden' and zig zags through a low gully before emerging on the top noise bund next to Bulltown Road and rejoining the existing walkway.

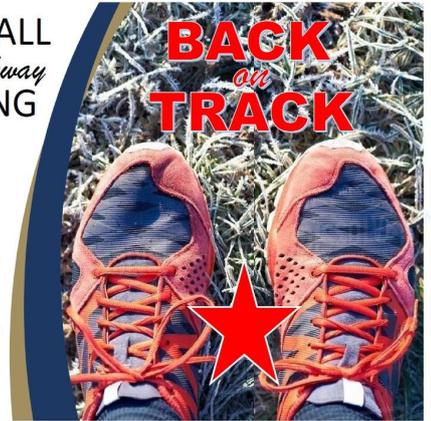

We know how popular the walkway is with both locals and tourists, so it's good to get this section of the route off the footpath and back onto a purpose-built gravel track. And even if we say it ourselves the view from the top of the North Wall is spectacular.
